

Consumer Products Company

Market Focus: Corporate

One of the largest consumer products company in the U.S. chose American Interiors for their newly renovated headquarters building.

This company had grown out of its space and needed to move a few divisions of the company into another building. This was an older building but the renovation turned out to be four magnificent spaces with all product provided by American Interiors.

While we had been providing 65" panels for several years in building out their workstations, we dropped their new panel configurations down to 50" high with frameless glass. We also provided a height adjustable worksurface in every workstation. This has been a huge hit with the employees. The feedback is that they would not want to go back to the headquarters building without the height adjustable worksurfaces.

The product used is a combination of Knoll Reff and Dividends product for the workstations. The seating is Knoll Generation.

By lowering the horizon of the workstations and putting several huddle rooms, we opened up the space for more collaboration and communication.
